

ANIMATION ARTS, BFA

Overview

The Animation Arts BFA is designed for students seeking professional-level training in animation and moving image production. The program expands on the BA's strong foundation by adding production-focused credits and offering a tightly woven sequence of courses dedicated to creative and technical study. The BFA provides deeper, earlier, and more continuous animation training than the BA.

You'll combine core filmmaking principles with animation coursework such as Experimental Animation, Stop Motion, and Intro to 3D Animation. The curriculum also integrates courses in professional practice, storyboarding, and digital production tools like Maya, After Effects, and Unreal Engine.

Throughout the program, you'll develop advanced artistic, conceptual, and collaborative skills applicable across film, television, gaming, and immersive media. With mentorship from experienced faculty and visiting professionals, you'll gain the confidence and portfolio needed to launch your creative career.

The BFA culminates in a two-semester senior project, where you'll produce an original animated film that reflects your technical excellence, creative depth, and readiness to enter the animation field.
